

BREAKING BIDEN TO NOMINATE MERRICK GARLAND AS ATTORNEY GENERAL

ART REVIEW

A painter challenges modernism with the harrowing history of slavery

By Cate McQuaid Globe Correspondent, Updated July 29, 2020, 12:00 p.m.

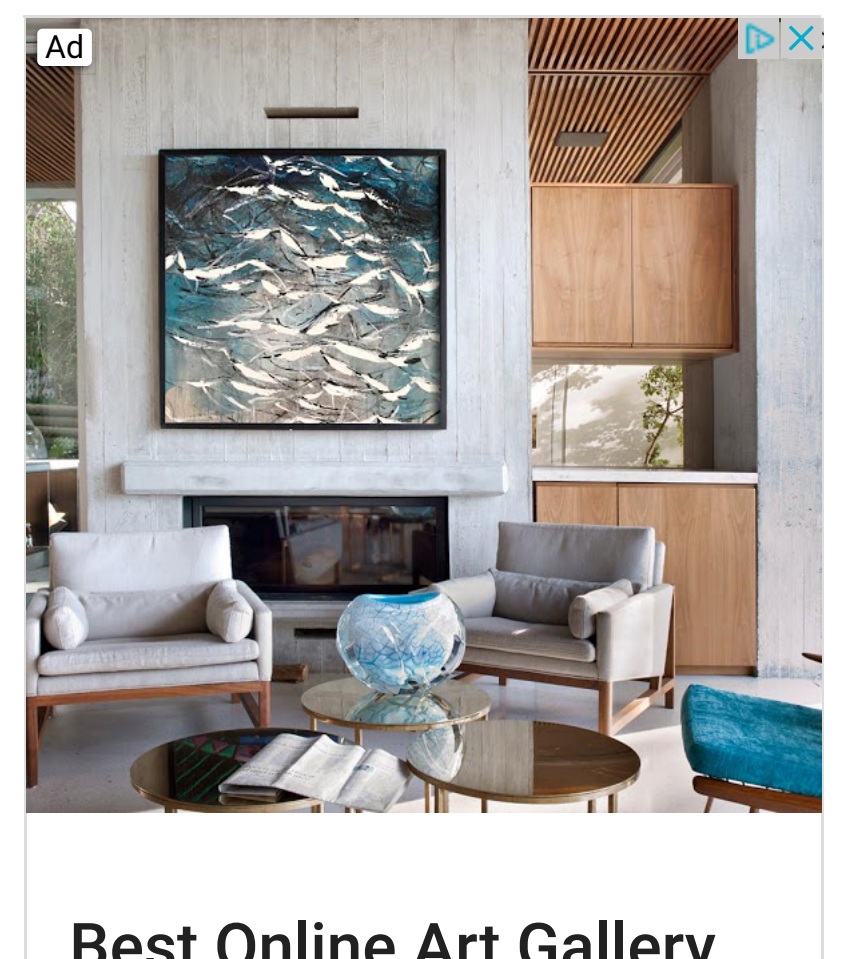

Longtime Bostonian Steve Locke left the city for a job in New York last year after he withdrew his proposal for "Auction Block Memorial at Faneuil Hall." The intended public art piece memorializes Africans kidnapped and sold by prominent 18th-century Boston slave trader and merchant Peter Faneuil. Locke put the brakes on after the Boston branch of the NAACP opposed the project.

Paintings from Locke's series "Homage to the Auction Block" are now on view at LaMontagne Gallery.

Steve Locke's "Homage to the Auction Block #27-nightwatch." LAMONTAGNE GALLERY

The series celebrates and subverts Josef Albers's legendary "Homage to the Square" series, a 25-year effort started in the 1950s and an emblem of Modernism's zeal to distill art into material, form, and color. Albers, a color theorist, nested squares of different hues, demonstrating how they vibrate against each other.

Best Online Art Gallery
Paintings, Sculptures & More
Singart
Shop Now

Advertisement

A Beautiful Resistance
Black joy, Black lives, as celebrated by culture columnist Jenée Osterheldt
See their stories
ILLUSTRATION BY Paula Champagne paulachampagne.com @makerchamp

Locke's auction block form is a rectangle representing where the enslaved people would be held, with a jutting corner for the auctioneer. Like Albers, he surrounds it with concentric squares, playing with color juxtapositions, enjoying his paint.

Advertisement

Steve Locke's "Homage to the Auction Block #14" from 2020. LAMONTAGNE GALLERY

The paintings critique centuries of erasure of the people sold at Faneuil Hall and elsewhere. It implicitly includes all of colonialism's tentacles, such as the seizure of land and the slaughter of Indigenous people.

It's simplistic to draw a single, straight line from colonialism to modernism. But 20th-century modernists' repudiation of history in favor of notions of purity echoed the presumptions of preceding centuries of colonialism.

Locke puts those erased people, and indeed the dynamic of erasure, at the center of the picture plane and lets that history, and not the rigid and affectless square, be the dropped pebble from which colors ripple out. All kinds of harmonies arise: the Caribbean blues and sunny yellow in "Homage to the Auction Block #44—respice," the bruised purples and blues in "Homage to the Auction Block #14," the searing oranges in "Homage to the Auction Block #31—...and here my troubles remain."

Advertisement

The formal clarity of modernist abstraction holds harrowing content well. The play of colors, like music, is a fluid entryway into the starkest of shadows. In this time of reckoning, it fits.

HOMAGE TO THE AUCTION BLOCK: NEW PAINTINGS BY STEVE LOCKE

At LaMontagne Gallery, 460 Harrison Ave., through Aug. 14. 617-487-3512, www.lamontagnegallery.com

Cate McQuaid can be reached at catemcquaid@gmail.com. Follow her on Twitter @cmcq.

Show comments

BOSTON GLOBE VIDEO

Passengers ride 100-year-old locomotive
The Conway Scenic Railroad's "winter steam" event took passengers on a ride on a 100-year-old locomotive in Conway, New Hampshire. (Brian Solomon, Conway Scenic Railroad)

NOW PLAYING
Passengers ride 100-year-old locomotive at Winter Steam event
Celtics fans in Tampa
Globe Op-Talk: The Democratic agenda in the new Congress

MOST POPULAR ON BOSTONGLOBE.COM

1. A very COVID coupling: They met on Zoom and then moved to Mexico
2. Trump's behavior isn't delusional. It's criminal
3. Six quick takeaways from the Georgia Senate runoffs so far
4. School suspensions don't work. It's time for something better.
5. Developer buying Fenway's Landmark Center in $1.52b deal
6. Ossoff-Perdue Senate race too close to call: Trump speaks ahead of Electoral College certification
7. 'Disgraced the office of the presidency': Romney chides Trump's doomed bid to challenge Biden win
8. In new book, Harvard astronomer pushes theory about object that passed through solar system; alien world may have sent it
9. Brigham and Women's president to step down
10. Police fatally shoot man in Newton Highlands

VIEWS FROM OUR COLUMNISTS

- YVONNE ABRAHAM
Beat it, 2020. You've been truly awful
- KEVIN CULLEN
The Confederacy won (or thinks it can)
- THOMAS FARRAGHER
What to my wondering eyes should appear, but a cherry-red helicopter with no need for reindeer
- SHIRLEY LEUNG
The Massachusetts Miracle is alive and well. 'There are a lot of potential Modernas'
- JENÉE OSTERHELDT
The Questions featuring Amanda Shea
- ADRIAN WALKER
Ron Mariano, the new speaker, doesn't seem to have much to say

MORE ON GLOBE.COM

Biden to nominate Merrick Garland as attorney general
President-elect Joe Biden is expected to name federal appeals court judge Merrick Garland as attorney general, AP sources say.

TRAVEL
A very COVID coupling: They met on Zoom and then moved to Mexico
A Massachusetts woman and an acquaintance she met on a virtual date arranged by a mutual friend decided to quarantine together in Mexico. This is the story of what happened next.

OPINION
Trump's behavior isn't delusional. It's criminal
Many would rather believe the president is slipping mentally than acknowledge that a criminal and con man has been occupying the White House.

THE LATEST ON GEORGIA'S SENATE ELECTIONS
Ossoff-Perdue Senate race too close to call: Trump speaks ahead of Electoral College certification
Democrats picked up a Senate seat in the Georgia runoffs, while the other race remains too close to call. Follow along with live updates on the remaining contest that will decide which party controls the chamber.

ANALYSIS
Six quick takeaways from the Georgia Senate runoffs so far
It's been a long election cycle and now a long runoff season. But even if it's not over yet, there are already lessons to be learned.

Developer buying Fenway's Landmark Center in $1.52b deal
Alexandria Real Estate Equities plans to continue developing the former Sears complex as a hub for life science companies.

PERSPECTIVE
School suspensions don't work. It's time for something better.
There are far more effective ways of dealing with student misbehavior than traditional suspensions and expulsions.

GLOBE MAGAZINE
How many friends do we really need to be happy?
On my quest for more meaningful friendships, I took a hard look at the people in my life. Then things got a little weird.

Brigham and Women's president to step down
The president of Brigham and Women's Hospital, Dr. Elizabeth "Betsy" Nabel, is stepping down after 11 years leading the prestigious nonprofit medical center to pursue opportunities in the for-profit biotech sector.

MOST READ IN THIS SECTION

GLOBE MAGAZINE How many friends do we really need to be happy?	BOOKS New England authors on the best binge-worthy series for young readers	Wondering about the '80s in 'Wonder Woman 1984'
BOOK REVIEW In 'Exercised,' Harvard professor Daniel Lieberman looks at why exercise, despite its aggravations, is worth it	SCORE A melody wrapped in an enigma: Johanna Magdalena Beyer's 'IV'	Startling truths about 'The Godfather' in Mario Puzo archive
TY BURR 10 more very good movies that you probably haven't seen	40 songs about the coronavirus pandemic	From Prince to Coltrane to Joni, here's a raft of desert island discs

FOLLOW US

SUBSCRIBE NOW
Digital Access
Home Delivery
Gift Subscriptions

MY ACCOUNT
Log In
Manage My Account
Customer Service

CONTACT
Help & FAQs
Globe Newsroom
Advertise

MORE
Newsletters / View The EPaper / Order Back Issues / News In Education / Search The Archives / Privacy Policy / Terms Of Service / Terms Of Purchase / Work At Boston Globe Media / Do Not Sell My Personal Information